

If you want value, you must put out.

The sluices clogged
with golden children,

"The price we pay for War," cues

the foreign minister
to no one in particular.